

Grace Hamilton, B.A., QMHP-Trainee

I'm from the Richmond area but graduated from a small school in Vermont called Marlboro College in 2020. I majored in sociology and minored in politics, and spent my final year studying and writing about white saviorism in the social work field and implementing anti racist practices into systems of public aid in the US. Since graduating I've worked with a variety of age ranges from 3-21 years old, as an in-home ABA clinician and in a crisis care residential setting. As an ABA clinician I worked with both verbal and non-verbal clients diagnosed with ASD, ADHD, and learning differences, working on functional communication training, parent training, and the use of differential reinforcement. In residential, I worked with primarily adolescents struggling with anxiety and depression disorders, intellectual disabilities, and histories of trauma to develop coping skills and safety plans. I prioritize autonomy above all else in my relationships with clients and operate from a trauma informed perspective. In my free time, I enjoy homemade ramen, hanging out with my canine roomies, reading murder mystery novels and watching reality TV.
