

Nicole Salamacha, B.A, QMHP-A, QMHP-C

I earned my Bachelor's degree in Psychology and Communications from Western Connecticut State University in 2015. I am also an Internationally Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor as well as a Certified Addiction Counselor through the State of Connecticut. My first position after college was at a psychiatric hospital in New York working with all ages utilizing Cognitive Behavioral Therapy, Dialectical Behavioral Therapy, Applied Behavioral Analysis and Motivational Interviewing approaches to treatment. I have experience in long term treatment (6-9 months), short term treatment (7-30 days), outpatient and community based treatment settings with both adults and children.
